Irvin initiates proposal to allow student body to vote for trustee

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

Legislative support for bills that would give student trustees binding votes, instead of the advisory votes they now have, is being solicited by the Illinois Student Association.

The ISA, an association of student governments, has been working on the proposal since October and interns are in Springfield this week talking to General Assembly members about two separate bills.

One would grant student trustees, regents and representatives on public higher education governing boards one collective student vote and the other would grant full voting rights to the 15 student representatives to higher education governing boards.

"Our interns are seeking sponsors in the General Assembly for both the collective voting bill and the full voting bill," said Tom Hasse, ISA president. "We're trying to see which bill will collect the most support."

Three bills that would have granted binding votes to student trustees have been introduced unsuccessfully in the past, Hasse said.

According to SIU-C Student Trustee Stan Irvin, the differing sizes and student-to-non-student ratios of the six higher education governing bodies in Illinois present logistical problems.

There are two student and seven appointed trustees on the SIU Board of Trustees, while the Board of Governors has five student and nine appointed members. The Board of Regents has three student and nine appointed members and the Illinois Community College Board has one student and nine appointed members.

The University of Illinois Board of Trustees has nine elected and three student members, but a consolidation of the Chicago Circle and Medical Center campuses will reduce the number to two.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education has 16 members — one student, 10 appointed and five chairpersons from the other five governing boards.

A bill granting student trustees full voting rights "probably stands zero chance of passing, but would be a position to bargain from," Irvin said.

The bill that would grant one collective vote also could present problems, he said. The collective vote would be the majority vote of the student members on each governing body

The SIU-C student body, for the first time, may choose to elect an alternate as well as a student trustee in a campuswide referendum that would decide how to replace present Student Trustee Stan Irvin.

Irvin plans to resign as trustee because he has accepted a position in the Jackson County State's Attorney's Office. His second term expires June '83.

The replacement proposal, initiated by Irvin, would allow for the alternate trustee to fill the position in the case of a vacancy without holding a campuswide referendum. Presently, the Carbondale campus has no provision for the replacement of student trustee, nor any provision for an alternate trustee.

"The idea for this spring is to elect a student trustee and an alternate trustee," Irvin said.

"With this set up, there will always be someone to fill a vacancy."

"That someone could have worked with the trustee and become familiar with the issues and the people the trustee has to work with."

Irvin said he will submit his proposal to both the Graduate Student Council and the Undergraduate Student Organization, who will decide a replacement method.

Both councils would have to agree on the replacement process before the proposal could be brought before a student body referendum.

The councils will probably consider the proposal at their first meeting of the semester on Jan. 26.

The campuswide referendum would decide whether the student trustee can be replaced by a student election, according to Thomas Britton, executive assistant to the chancellor.

"The method of selecting the new student trustee and any alternates must be by a campuswide election," Britton said.

According to Britton, the Illinois statute deals only with the method of selection, not the selection process. The statute says nothing about whether the student trustee who is selected is to be elected by a campuswide referendum.

"The statute doesn't restrict the options for selecting a student trustee or an alternate," he said, "as long as the method of selection is by a student referendum."

The campuswide election would follow the election bylaws of the GSC and the USO.

"As long as the student organizations can come up with something that meets the requirements of the Illinois statute on the method of selection that is suitable to the SIU-C administration and the student body, the state law has no problem with it," Britton said.

Reagan says private funds aid schools

By James Gerstenzang
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — President Reagan, in a visit aides said was at least partly political, made a return trip Wednesday to a predominantly black high school on this city's west side, noting that private contributions were helping it train "today's workforce for tomorrow's jobs."

The president made the stop at Providence St. Mel's High School during a trip planned for a strictly political chore that has irked some conservatives — attending a fund-raising dinner for Sen. Charles Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Reagan, who had visited the private school May 10, said support from private donations had "made it possible to expand the opportunities available to young people."

The president said schools such as Providence St. Mel's can play an important role in training "today's workforce for tomorrow's jobs." Many help-wanted ads go unfilled, even in a time of high unemployment, because there are not enough trained workers, he said.

After taking a quiz on a computer terminal, Reagan said, "I remember back when Latin was mandatory."

Reagan agreed to serve as the honorary chairman of St. Mel's $6.5 million fund-raising campaign, along with GOP contributor and philanthropist W. Clement Stone, who promised a $100,000 challenge grant to be matched by other contributions.

In a speech prepared for the Percy dinner, Reagan stressed the need for adequate defense spending and a balanced federal budget. But he also promised he would soon announce new programs to cut unemployment, which was 10.8 percent in December, and said the budget "must be fair to all our people."

"In the long run, economic growth will put our unemployed back to work, revive idle factories and open new doors of opportunity," Reagan said. "But in the short run, our people continue to hurt, so we must take action."

"The millions of unemployed now form a sea of unused minds, talents and energy. We must not turn our backs on their pain, nor waste their mighty resource," he said.

Reagan's decision to help Percy angered right-wing Republicans since Rep. Tom Corcoran, a conservative, has flirted with entering the Illinois

GOP primary campaign to challenge Percy.

The sold-out dinner was expected to raise $1.2 million for a Percy campaign in 1984.

A number of nationally prominent conservatives planned to attend a separate dinner for Corcoran. They see Percy as too liberal.

"Percy may be well-liked personally, but politically he's on the far left of the spectrum," said Peter B. Gemma Jr., a leader of the National Pro-Right Political Action Committee.

But Kathy Lyden, a Percy spokeswoman, said a voting analysis by Congressional Quarterly, a private publication, rated Percy No. 1 in supporting Reagan.

Commerce secretary predicts economy comeback in 1983

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a stark new measure of the recession's severity, the government said Wednesday the economy sank further in 1982 than in any year since the aftermath of World War II. But Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the steepest drop, at year's end, was the last gasp of the long downturn.

"We're in a recession, there's no question about that," said Baldrige. "But the recovery is beginning this quarter."

Administration officials had predicted recovery a full year ago, but their hopes were dashed when interest rates remained high through early summer, slowing sales and stifling investment.

"There's a big, big difference now because interest rates are down," Baldrige said.

He spoke with reporters after his department released figures showing the U.S. economy — measured by real, or inflation-adjusted, gross national product — fell 1.8 percent last year.

That small sounding number represented the biggest one-year decline since the 14.7 percent of 1946 when U.S. industry was gearing down from its huge war effort.

Real GNP, which measures all the goods and services the nation produces, was falling at an even faster 2.5 percent annual rate in the final quarter of 1982 after rising slightly in the previous six months, the report said.

But Baldrige said that was due to businesses temporarily holding back production, selling inventories of long-unsold goods, thereby making room for new gains in output. The auto industry, which sharply reduced its inventories in the fourth quarter, already has stepped up production, he noted.

money, according to Janet Buckley of the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission.

Jackson County received $55,724 for the Youth Employment Training Program and $467,385 for training, re-training and on-the-job training for youths and adults.

The Jobs Training Partnership Act (JTPA) will replace the CETA program in October, 1983. JTPA will be providing training and educational opportunities for disadvantaged workers. The primary difference is that JTPA will rely on private business and industry for program goals and objectives, according to Buckley.

Funding for this program has not yet been determined. Different regions will be established and funds will be directly controlled by local government rather than state, Buckley said.

Indians angry at Watt's comment

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Indian leaders assailed Interior Secretary James Watt on Wednesday for comparing their reservations to enclaves of "terrible socialism." Some called for his resignation and one accused him of "bringing new meaning to the word red-baiting."

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III said the Indians had misinterpreted Watt's concern for their well-being, but in Congress Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., said Watt "must have picked up some of his Indian policy from General Custer."

The furor stemmed from Watt's comment Wednesday on a television program called "Conservative Counterpoint": "If you want an example of the failures of socialism, don't go to Russia. Come to America and see the Indian reservations."

Arms chief willing to risk escalation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's news arms control chief has declared that American strategic policy must convince the Soviet Union that "The United States would indeed risk nuclear escalation" to counter aggression against European allies or Persian Gulf interests.

Kenneth Adelman, named to succeed the ousted Eugene V. Rostow as head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, called for better offensive nuclear weapons and outlined a strategy that would target Soviet command centers and bunkers where Moscow's leaders would take refuge.

Governors ask Dole for jobs aid

CHICAGO (AP) — States already wracked by joblessness cannot continue to meet the "crushing burden" of soaring unemployment insurance debts without immediate and long-term assistance from Congress, a group of governors told Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., on Wednesday.

Increased federal assistance to states in the area of unemployment insurance "may add to the federal deficit," Dole said, adding "The concept of providing assistance is still good... We must preserve the system."

Support grows for state tax hike

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Another voice was added Wednesday to the growing chorus of Illinoisans calling for a state income tax hike as a group of labor, professional and consumer groups announced support for such a boost.

At the same time, the Illinois Fair Tax Coalition proposed lower property taxes and elimination of the remaining 2 percent state sales tax on food and medicine. Illinois corporations now pay 17 percent of Illinois' total income tax receipts, but should pay 20 percent of the total, the coalition said.

Time best cure for hangover

By Mary Pries
Staff Writer

Raw eggs and tabasco sauce, crushed vitamins in applesauce and glasses of Alka Seltzer are just a few of the weird things that people take to try to relieve a hangover, according to Nancy Logan, alcohol educator and counselor at the Wellness Center.

"There really aren't any quick ways to get rid of a hangover," she said. "The hangover is the body's physiological reaction to having too much alcohol."

It just takes time, she explained, because the liver must process 90 percent of the alcohol and it can only do this at the rate of approximately one drink per hour.

Drinking alcohol is like being put under an anesthetic, said Jerry Molumby, coordinator of the alcohol treatment service at the Jackson County Mental Health Center. "First it reduces the inhibitions, then it affects judgment, motor coordination, and finally involuntary processes like breathing. The hangover is a reverse of the progression," he said.

Exercise doesn't help get rid of a hangover, explained Molumby. "Running may help to get a person's mind off the hangover, but it doesn't speed the liver or the time it takes."

Pat Eckert, coordinator of the alcohol and drug program at the Wellness Center, said some people believe that taking a cold shower helps. "That only makes the person wide awake, which can be dangerous if he is still drunk and goes on drinking more."

Another serious danger is the old idea of "a hair from the dog that bit you," said Logan. "Drinking alcohol the next day only postpones the symptoms. The person will go through a worse hangover later."

Tranquilizers aren't the answer either, she said, because they do the same thing as alcohol, except in pill form.

"The only cure is not to drink enough to get you that way," she said.

Yet, defining how much is too much and explaining why some people don't get hangovers is not easy, said Logan.

Molumby said some people don't get the negative symptoms like nervousness, weakness, headache, vomiting and hunger, but he can't explain why.

Logan said whether or not a person gets a hangover and how long it lasts depends on his experience with drinking, how fast he drinks and how fast his metabolism is.

"One of the hardest parts of understanding alcohol is prediction because it really depends on the person's experience and reaction," she said.

The power of expectation is also a possible explanation for a hangover, she said.

Eckert said, "Sometimes a person believes because he partied hard he should feel lousy, and that may have an impact on how he feels."

Molumby didn't agree, but said he did believe a person could become intoxicated faster because of his psychological attitude.

Right to abortion backed by League of Women Voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national League of Women Voters, after years of avoiding a stance on the issue, announced Wednesday it officially supports American women's right to have an abortion.

"The League of Women Voters believes that public policy in a pluralistic society must affirm the constitutional right of the individual to make reproductive choices," a league statement said.

League president Dorothy S. Ridings said the league is not endorsing abortion itself. "This is not a statement that implies moral approval or disapproval of the procedure of abortion," she said in an interview.

Instead, she said, the league believes that the government should leave the question of abortion and other matters dealing with reproduction to the conscience of each person.

League officials said the organization's board adopted the position at its meeting Tuesday, almost 10 years after the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its decision legalizing abortion in most situations.

Meanwhile, the leader of U.S. Roman Catholic bishops said Wednesday in a statement marking the anniversary of the court action that the ruling on Jan. 22, 1973, has poisoned the national conscience, "eroding respect for life and hardening hearts against the most elementary claims of compassion."

Mrs. Ridings said the decision by the league's board came after the "reproductive rights" position gained one of the highest levels of support from league chapters of any issue in the last eight years.

Help, it's 'radiovoid'

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

I don't care about the demographics! So more people 18-30 listen to the same glossed over recycled trash played on the radio day after day. I don't care anymore. I really don't.

You see, I'm suffering from radiovoid. I mean, I turn on the receiver and, deja vu, the same songs. I've tried waking up at four in the morning and sneaking up on the damn thing. I flick on the switch and there they are, the same songs. I can't take it anymore. I really can't.

I'm getting so desperate I'm contemplating moving back in the dorms so I can pick up WIDB. I hang out in the hall at the student center and salivate.

Listen: my tapeplayer has swayback and all my albums have worn thin. I drool over stories of WXRT in Chicago. I've been trying to develop friends that work for record stores. I've even started listening to country music!

Sometimes I lie awake at night. I think to myself, if I listen long enough I'll hear James Brown or Oingo Boingo or OMD or Duke Ellington or the Specials. How about Albert Collins or Steel Pulse or even an old Syd Barrett cut. There is a world of music that bypasses Carbondale airwaves like the express train to New Orleans.

I tell you what. We'll all get together and do it ourselves. We can call it W-I-L-K, Radio Boskeydell. It could be like the old WTAO. Imagine related sets, comedy cuts in the morning (remember Live Earl Jive talking to whales and playing National Lampoon albums?), jazz peppered throughout the day, any cut from any album and even an occasional party in the studio.

Sound great? It will sound great. Just send donations to: Radio Boskeydell, c/o Jeff Wilkinson, Daily Egyptian. Maybe we can have an intelligent variety of music on the radio in Carbondale once again.

Holier than thou spoon-fed brat

What are you anyway, Andrew Herrmann, some kind of spoon-fed brat whose daddy owns a big construction firm in Chicago or what? What sort of holier than thou major are you studying, underwater basketweaving?

It so happens that I am an Industrial Technology undergrad and have instructors in the field who fit some of your dislikes (D.E. Jan. 17). Only it just so happens that they are some of the most intelligent and brightest instructors I have.

It's just your attitude, pal — that's what makes or breaks a class. I bet I'll earn a finer living when I get through with school than any prejudice-minded dude like you — especially if you follow this style of writing when you hit the real world out there. I'm surprised you didn't discriminate against the suit or dress they wore. — Mike Vaughn, senior, Mechanical Engineering.

Soldiers lose in new defense cut

MADNESS, MADNESS," scores of Americans are saying about defense spending and a U.S.-Soviet arms race. Public pressure is growing to harness the madness masquerading as national security.

Public opinion played a small role in Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's concession when he agreed last week to trim $11 billion from defense spending. But it seems Reagan aides got to Weinberger before public opinion.

That explains the lack of wisdom in the decisions on where to cut defense spending. Reagan aides weren't so interested in where the cuts were made as that they were made to help bring the federal deficit under control.

AMERICANS ON THE OTHER HAND were very interested in where the cuts were made. And Weinberger's cuts weren't what they had in mind.

The cuts, according to Weinberger, were possible because of lower inflation rates and because expenditures for military pay raises, maneuvers and training exercises could be delayed. This is at a time when veterans are arguing that these areas need to be shored up to make the forces appealing to future volunteers.

GROUPS ACROSS

American society including Catholic bishops and scientists have warned about the dangers of the arms race, using arguments ranging from ethical considerations to the catastrophe of possible genocide, the extinction of life on the planet.

National security is essential. But armed forces, particularly nuclear arms, are only part of security. The buildup of nuclear arms by both sides has made even the thought of nuclear war horrifying. The result is that nuclear arms are almost an obsolete weapon in that the use of them is unthinkable.

Pentagon officials are thinking about it nonetheless. Reports that officials may consider a limited nuclear war a winnable war are scary. The arms race is scary.

ARMS RACES LEAD to war as easily as they do to peace. Tensions are created and fueled by officials worrying about which side is winning the race. Perhaps someone should explain how one side wins this race.

Congress is calling for a ban on nuclear weapons designed to be used in space. At the same time, a recent defense plan calls such "space weapons" essential to national security and urges that no agreement limiting their use be signed. This indeed is madness.

National security also means economic, political and diplomatic security. These too are important parts of security that Reagan seems to be ignoring in his eagerness to make America No. 1 again. How secure will Americans feel when the country is armed to the teeth and bone and Reagan proudly proclaims that we're No. 1 again?

A lack of respect for human life?

Jan. 20 is the 10th "anniversary" of the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling in Roe v. Wade that legalized abortion. What has been the benefit of that ruling?

As a result, we have legally killed more than 10 million unborn children. More than 10 million women have been ravaged and exploited. Thirty percent of all our new children are killed by abortion. Abortion clinics still do not tell women about fetal development or abortion alternatives.

The grisliness of abortion gets worse each year. In Los Angeles this year thousands of decomposing bodies of aborted children were found in a garbage dumpster behind an abortion clinic. The lack of respect for human life caused by legalized abortion has spread to newborn children. Doctors and lawyers are now allowing the killing of infants.

In Indiana it is legal to starve to death handicapped newborn children.

The Supreme Court has done much to further encourage the killing. Since their ruling in Roe, the court has determined that a woman can get an abortion anytime between conception and birth. The court has ruled that parents cannot prevent their minor daughters from getting an abortion (although they need parental permission to get their ears pierced!). The court has also ruled that husbands cannot prevent their wives from getting an abortion.

And where are we today? The majority of politicians are "personally opposed to abortion," but they don't have the personal integrity to pass legislation to stop it. The Supreme Court broods protectively over the killing. The media, so very adept at exposing scandals, have not informed the public of the holocaust of abortion.

But, more importantly, what are we doing to stop the killing? Karl Barth, the late Protestant theologian, had this to say:

"No community, whether family, village or state, is really strong if it will not carry its weak and even its very weakest members. They belong to it no less than the strong, and the quiet work of their maintenance and care, which might seem useless on a superficial view, is perhaps more effective than common labor, culture, or historical conflict in knitting it closely and securely together."

On the other hand, a community which regards and trusts its weak members as a hindrance, and even proceeds to their extermination, is on the verge of collapse." — Wayne A. Helmer, President, Carbondale Christian Action Council.

Trying to choose a major? Upcoming workshops may help

By Shella Washington
Staff Writer

Many students who enter college have undecided majors. Most of these students have no idea of what they want to do in the futures and many are unaware of the range of occupations available in the job market. More often than not, many of these students stumble into majors that go against their needs and wants for a successful transition into the working world.

The Career Counseling Center is aware of these problems and will concentrate on alleviating some of them with group sessions and workshops throughout the semester.

The first workshop, titled "How To Choose A Major," will have its first meeting on Monday Feb. 7, to help undecided majors choose a major that will be challenging and beneficial for them.

Jim Scales, counseling psychologist who will conduct the workshop, said the focus of the group will be to help students clarify their interests, abilities, values and skills, and to evaluate available career options.

Scales said many students don't fit into the major they have chosen, but accept career choices that either have been chosen for them by others or are easier to attain a degree in. On the other hand, he said, some try to tackle majors that will lead them into a more secure financial bracket.

Another problem, he said, is student's tendencies to either over or underestimate their abilities for college study and career goals. For example, he said that some women, who are bright science and math students, gear themselves into traditional teaching roles instead of technical fields to avoid "getting hurt." Other students thrust themselves into educational paralysis by "shooting for what they can't achieve," he said.

Another workshop, titled "Career Planning for Black Students," will have the first of its four meetings on Feb. 8. This group will help participants plan for the future while assessing how culture influences their choice of specific majors.

Karen Washington, graduate assistant in Career Counseling, will conduct the program with Michael Brown, graduate in psychology. Washington said this session will encourage black students to work at attaining the necessary means to reach any goals that they may have.

Although literature states that black students have tended to swing towards the social sciences for professional careers in the past, Washington said, this workshop will help them "pursue what they are interested in" and not follow cultural norms.

Washington said black students have also been influenced to reach for specific positions in the job market because they "lack occupational information, have few role models throughout the spectrum of careers and possibly fear discrimination in the job market."

Space for both workshops is limited, but those interested in registration may visit the Career Counseling Center, B-204 Woody Hall or call 536-2096.

City ducks flack, dumps litter signs

CAPE MAY, N.J. (AP) — Not wanting to be hounded for poor taste, City Council members have rejected anti-littering signs that graphically depict a dog leaving unwanted souvenirs on public sidewalks.

Instead, the anti-defecation signs — using the universal slash-in-a-circle symbol of many traffic signs — will be auctioned off as collectors' items, the council said after Monday's vote.

City officials ordered eight of the signs, sight unseen, from a Marblehead, Mass. company. But they were a bit taken aback when the realistic signs arrived, said Mayor Arthur Blomkvist.

They questioned the propriety of posting such signs in this resort city, where families seek summer refuge in dozens of Victorian boarding houses.

The signs were intended to tell dog owners about the local "pooper-scooper" law requiring residents to clean up after their pets.

"We're very interested in trying to see that our ordinances are enforced in the city and that was one reason the sign was brought to the council's attention," Blomkvist said. "But the sign was not really done in good taste and we thought we needed a sign a little bit more dignified."

Transit service, defense class help women protect themselves

By Michele Imman
Staff Writer

A new semester has started and lots of activities are being offered — activities that may require walking across campus alone in the dark.

Many students, especially women, are concerned about transportation and safety. But with the transit services and a self-defense class for women, offered in part by Women's Services, Room B244, Woody Hall, women can begin to protect themselves.

Since Oct. 22, the transit services have been running an hour earlier. The new hours are from 6 p.m. to midnight Sunday through Friday for Women's Transit and 6 p.m. to midnight Sunday through Thursday for the night safety van and the station wagon.

While the women's transit only accepts calls from women, through which off-campus women may go from their residences to on-campus based activities or vice versa, the night safety van and the station wagon are available to both men and women. Peggy Marshall, campus safety representative, said

The van and station wagon take a half-an-hour circuit around campus, she said, and students may catch the van or station wagon at designated spots around campus.

The women's transit accepted 130 calls a night between October and November, Marshall said. According to Marshall, during the 30-day period 829 students utilized the night safety van and 327 used the station wagon.

The women's self-defense class, which is offered every fall and spring semester, will begin in February, Marshall said. Two orientation sessions will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesday Feb. 1 and at 10 a.m. Saturday Feb. 5.

"This gives the student an opportunity to find out what the class is all about and then they may enroll," Marshall said.

The class starts a week after orientation.

"The women's self-defense teaches you both the mental and physical aspect of defending yourself," Marshall commented. "It's being aware of your environment and aware that crime exists in Carbondale."

According to a leaflet distributed by Women's Services, self-defense is 70 percent psychological and 30 percent physical. It is not a martial art but a series of practical, physical and skill techniques than any woman can learn.

The class, sponsored by Women's Services, Intramural Recreational Sports and Student Health Programs, is taught by Grace Poppen from the National Women's Self-Defense Council. According to Marshall, the 10-week, non-credit course requires a $10 fee and is open to university and community women. About 60 people enrolled in two sections last semester, she said.

As a non-voting member of the campus safety fee board, which sets safety policies around campus, Marshall noted she acts as a liaison between the student body and the campus safety fee board.

Japanese balk at fruitcakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas baking company says it has been barred from exporting 500 fruitcakes to Japan because of the coloring in the cake's cherries, a situation one company official regards as "definitely nuttier than a fruitcake."

The fruitcakes have been sitting on a Yokohama dock for over a month, after Japanese customs officials said the food coloring in the cherries was not approved for use in Japan, said Bill McNutt III, vice president of Collin Street Bakery in Corsicana.

"I ought to send him a fruitcake," McNutt said of Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, who is on a visit to the United States.

McNutt called the decision typical of unfair import barriers put up by the Japanese, saying his firm sends cakes to nearly "every other country in the world, and we've never had a problem like this before."

After it became evident the fruitcakes wouldn't be delivered, McNutt contacted

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, about the possibility of donating them to U.S. military personnel.

Tower got in touch with the Navy, whose food service personnel say they hope to pick up the cakes and serve them on ships in the Pacific. But James Martin, of the Navy's food service system, said the cakes must be located first.

"We can't find them," Martin said Tuesday. "That's where we stand right now."

McNutt said the cakes were ordered by Business Consultants, Inc., of Tokyo, which wanted to give them to its customers. They were shipped in October by the bakery, which sells 3.8 million pounds of fruitcake a year worldwide, all by direct mail.

After the cakes arrived in Japan in early December, Business Consultants reported that Japanese customs officials had blocked their import because the cherries contained a food coloring known as No. 40 coloring, McNutt said.

"They said they didn't allow that color in Japan," said

McNutt, who called it "an obvious attempt to figure out some way not to let these cakes in the country."

McNutt said the Collin Street Bakery had shipped 100,000 similar cakes to individuals in Japan over the past five years, and never had any problem. The only objection came with this, the first bulk shipment, he said.

McNutt also said the coloring was approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, and had never been objected to in any of the other 190 countries the bakery has shipped to.

McNutt said his bakery had to refund the $11,600 that Business Consultants had paid to have the cakes shipped.

President praises achievers

CHICAGO (AP) — When President Reagan walked into Providence-St. Mel High School on Wednesday, he saw only a simple banner saying "Welcome, Mr. President" — no streamers, no posters, or brass bands.

"We can't afford it," said principal Paul J. Adams. "We're doing what we can with what we got."

All of the school's June graduates went on to college, a remarkable achievement in an area where tests have found that some public high school graduates read at grade-school levels.

But the success story is darkened by financial problems, both in the school's shoestring budget and the family budgets of those trying to meet the $1,200-a-year tuition.

"We lose a lot of students because of the tuition," said Sister Ruth Ellen Doane, the school's director of curriculum.

Providence-St. Mel is located in the city's West Side ghetto, where unemployment is running at 60 percent. Drug sales and prostitution go on within blocks, and the name and insignia of the Vice Lords street gang are spray-painted on the school's stone walls.

The school was taken over by students and their parents four years ago after the city's Roman Catholic archdiocese decided the school was too deep in red ink. Finance was a hand-to-mouth affair, with parents sponsoring fund-raising bingo games and Adams trying to sell private donors on academic excellence in the ghetto. Tuition covers only about half of the school's $857,000 annual budget.

The students and faculty said they've been glad to have Reagan's help. Since the president's first visit May 10, insurance magnate W. Clement Stone has taken interest in the school, donating $100,000 to kick off a $6.5 million fund-raising drive, with Reagan serving as honorary chairman.

"We want to thank you for sharing our dream," Adams told Reagan.

Young 'Trans'formed

By Cynthia Rector
Staff Writer

The new Neil Young album almost isn't. If the average Neil Young fan were to listen to the album, skipping the first song, without knowing who it was by, they would be hard pressed to recognize it as Young's work.

With the exception of three tunes, the remainder of "Trans" sounds suspiciously like Kraftwerk or The Alan Parson's Project.

Young's new album is his first for Geffen Records. The electronic high-pitched voice heard beginning with the album's second cut, may lack the crackling intensity and character of Young's normal voice, but it is indeed owned and operated by the same man who has let his emotions and feelings spin on so many turntables.

At 41, Young isn't burning out or fading away, but merely evolving and these strange electronic sounds are expansions into a new era. He's moving into the computer age with the same sense of irony that he brought to his versions of rock, folk, soul and country.

Titles like "Computer Age," "Computer Cowboy," and "We R in Control" are blatant, symbolizing the enthusiasm and fearlessness with which Young approaches his new foothold. In a November interview with Musician magazine Young says he feels electronic music has replaced the acoustic "stuff" he used to do with his guitar. "The computer stuff is that personal to me. It's stuff I used to do with my guitar alone. Now it's me alone with my machines."

To achieve his "trans" sound, Young uses three Vocoders, machine: which transmit his voice through a Synclavier keyboard. One of the Vocoders is used to treat his guitar and the other two affect his vocals. The vocal effect is reminiscent of a singing computer. Various Vocoder-induced sounds are represented on trans, from a deep foreboding voice on "Computer Cowboy" to a high smooth-sounding voice on "Transformer Man." The latter is probably the prettiest song of the LP. The voice with its pinpoint high pitch mingled with the breezy music is a perfect backdrop for the off-beat song of praise. On this song and others, Young uses his machines in an emotive way, just as he uses his own voice.

One thing that fans may miss in Young's recent music, "Trans" included, is personal references. He isn't giving any hints about his life with wife, Pegi, his adolescence or his relationship with rock and roll. It seems, at least for now, that he is creating characters instead of working strictly from his own experience. The political commentary he's known for has shifted more towards social commentary, universal then that of his "Southern Man" days.

For example, we all worry about nuclear holocaust, and the decline of our culture. Young's most obvious message song on this LP is "Like an Inca," which, although it doesn't have the computer twist, is a personal favorite. Both its music and words are interesting and forceful. The bold lyrics: "Who put the bomb on the sacred altar? Why should we die if it comes our way? Why should we care about a little button? Being pushed by someone we don't even know?" In between lines of protests, there is a more symbolic musings and wishing. Neil sings it in his own unique voice. His hard-core fans will relish that voice, often referred to as a whine.

"Sample and Hold," the best computer song, could be a tongue-in-cheek prediction of dating in the year 2009. Welcome to a mail order house of perfect mates. "Please specify the colour of skin and eye. We know you'll be satisfied when you energize... And see your unit come alive," sings Neil through one of his three Vocoders. Musically, it is a computer-crisp upbeat number. The synthesizers in this song sounds happy. But when the lyrics are taken into account, an ironic tone emerges.

Some claim Young can't sing or play guitar very well. Regardless, "Trans" shows that he still knows how to make intriguing sounds, and that for this musical chameleon, there is now a new world of options.

'The Verdict' ruled a winner

By Dale Shepherd
Student Writer

Even if you're not aware of the motion picture, "The Verdict," you are probably aware of Paul Newman, the actor and highly-noted star of that picture. Newman has recently made the covers of Time and Rolling Stone, while also coming up even money in Las Vegas to walk away with this year's Best Actor Oscar.

In "The Verdict," Newman, last nominated for an Oscar for his performance in "Absence of Malice," portrays lawyer Frank Gavin, a disenchanted attorney, skipping through life by using ambulance-chasing tactics in the City of Boston. Gavin lives by drink and lies, spending his mornings swishing down his breakfast of raw eggs and beer at his favorite bar.

While dealing with his daily acts of unprofessionalism, Gavin stumbles across a malpractice case which he decides will stabilize his career and his life. In this case, Gavin could accept a settlement from the Catholic hospital involved but he chooses to take to court what appears to be a hopeless case. Naturally, he will battle the most prestigious and powerful law firm in Boston.

Gavin's opponent, Ed Conannon, is convincingly portrayed by veteran actor James Mason. Mason's character is that of a very powerful and confident attorney, and he cool-overshadows Gavin's bungling antics.

The judge in the case seemingly takes a side — not Gavin's — thereby further limiting the chances of a victory.

There is also Jack Warden, cast as Gavin's friend and mentor, Mickey Morrissey. Warden, who tends to bounce from film to film, playing parts that seem to be created especially for him, is perfect in the supporting part of the cursing, argumentative Morrissey. You will sense, however, that you are watching Warden re-create his "Heaven Can Wait" football coach role, the only difference being in the suit he wears.

Morrissey introduces the malpractice suit to Gavin, and while "investigating" the case, Gavin stumbles upon a mysterious looking woman in his drinking establishment. Charlotte Rampling is Laura Fischer, who becomes part of Gavin's attempt to come back to life. Rampling is very effective in creating and brooding sensuality of the mysterious Fischer, whose life not so surprisingly parallels Gavin's.

The film progresses with the pre-trial activities, as we are provided with the contrast between Conannon's team of a dozen or so assistants working to assure victory in what is already an apparent triumph, with Gavin and his "team" of Morrissey and Fischer.

"The Verdict" is a fine example of television director-turned-film-maker Sidney Lumet's expertise, and is accentuated by Newman's acting abilities.

Under Lumet's control, we are brought into Gavin's world as a confused observer. Lumet makes it difficult for us to choose whether we should pull for Gavin or to give up on him completely, as Gavin does himself several times. Lumet has created a hectic rhythm throughout the film, which is evident in most of his projects, and when we are just about to decide that Gavin should drown in his own self-pity, the tables are turned and we begin to cheer the poor man on.

The courtroom scenes are excellent from the opening shots, to the monumental zoom to Gavin's face as the verdict is delivered; the verdict being that of Gavin's case and his life.

The character of Gavin is a shameful wimp who is portrayed splendidly indeed by the macho Newman. He carries the character's insipidity across in a manner that contradicts his previous roles.

His superb performance accelerates throughout the film, as Gavin seemingly becomes obsessed with victory only to concede defeat to himself and his beer several times. The pressure on his frail confidence escalates as he is torn between going all the way through with the case, or to just quit and accept the consequences.

As for a prediction concerning Newman's bid for his sixth Academy Award nomination and his first Oscar — my tuition money will be riding on Newman.

Computer logs faculty profiles

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

SIU-C and four other state universities are contributing to a new computer-based information program designed to identify faculty research and teaching capabilities.

The Faculty Research Assistance to the State program is a "unique project that will help faculty members to advance their research," says Elizabeth Sneed, a graduate assistant who works with the program in the SIU-C Office of Research Development and Administration.

Profiles of faculty at SIU-C, SIU-Edwardsville, the University of Illinois, Eastern Illinois University and Northern Illinois University are being collected and programmed at the computer center at the U of I Urbana campus.

SIU-C is collecting information from faculty about research interests, completed research, publications, international study and awards, Sneed said. The office is sending eight-page questionnaires to all active faculty members.

She said the response has been good from faculty.

Sneed said she hopes the University will have limited access to the system by April and full access by September.

"The project will reach a whole wide area of people inside, as well as outside, the University," Sneed said.

The project will help faculty members identify similar research interests so they can cooperate with colleagues, find additional resources or further their education, Sneed said. The project will help the administration to trigger the resources of individuals and identify the strengths and weaknesses of various departments, she said.

The faculty profiles could also aid industry, government and the public, she noted.

To operate the project, the University of Illinois is receiving about $90,000 for fiscal year 1983 from a grant from the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs; from a grant from the Illinois Board of Higher Education through the Higher Education Cooperative Act; and from institutional support of the five participating universities.

SIU-C contributed about $6,000 for fiscal year 1983, according to Michael Dingerson, associate dean and director of research development and administration.

HBO rebounds with a signal scramble

NEW YORK (AP) — Home Box Office, hoping to foil television viewers who have their own satellite dishes, says it will scramble its signal starting later this year to prevent unauthorized reception.

HBO spokesman Mark Harrod said Tuesday satellite receiving equipment is readily available on the open market.

And he noted, "It's not going to be any less a problem for the future."

HBO, the nation's largest pay-cable operation, serves about 11 million subscribers through 4,400 local cable systems.

'SOAP' helps mining operators dig through rough economic times

By William Jason Yong
Staff Writer

In these times of bad economic conditions, small businesses are most vulnerable to the forces of the market system.

For this reason, Small Operators Assistance Program and (SOAP) was created in late 1979 designed to provide assistance to small-size coal mining operators, according to Catherine Carlson, coordinator of SOAP.

Carlson said the five-member program helps mine operators conduct geological and hydrological tests such as chemical analysis on rocks to determine acidity; checking the surface and ground water quality; and, using the information gathered, assesses the potential impact of mining operation on the environment.

"The federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act, passed in 1977, requires operators to file detailed information with regulatory agencies about their mining operation and the effect of mining activities on the surrounding land," Carlson said.

Larger companies, she said, have enough resources to do the tests and planning, but small operators do not have the resources to hire specialists to do the job.

Mining operators whose mines produce 100,000 tons of coal or less per year are eligible for assistance from SOAP.

SOAP, located in Carterville, is affiliated with SIU-C's Coal

Extraction and Utilization Research Center. SIU-C conducts the program under a contract with the Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals. Costs of the program are covered by an annual grant to the department from the federal government.

Illinois is the only state in the nation that has such a federal program created through a public institution, Carlson said. Other states programs are put out on a bid basis for private operation.

"We received $290,000 a year from the Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals," Carlson said, who has supervised the program since Feb. 1981. "The federal act requires the program provides free assistance to small operators who could not afford to hire specialists."

SOAP's expenditures vary from state to state and from site to site. Summer and spring account for the most mining activities during the year because of the dry weather conditions, she said.

"It usually takes us six months to monitor water quality and test rock acidity prior to the mining operation itself," Carlson said. "In some states, the monitoring period may be one year, but the average is six months."

Rock samples are taken to Cepheus Industry, a private laboratory in Marion, for analysis. Groundwork drilling and water quality are then performed.

There are four full-time staff members in the program consisting of two hydrologists, a geologist and a field technician. SOAP has assisted 15 mine operators in the past. The number has declined to eight operators now.

"The economic condition is the main reason for the decline," Carlson said. "Small mine operators could not afford the high costs in materials and equipment. They also have to bear the cost of lease and bond on the land they operate on."

SOAP does not charge mine operators any expenses for its assistance except for the drilling work which is $5 per foot. The average drilling depth in most Southern Illinois mines is between 20 and 30 feet, she said. The state pays for the cost of construction of the water wells.

Theater group reorganizes

Its aim is to give black students a better opportunity to explore aspects of theater and to project a positive image of a professional organization.

The Black Open Laboratory Theater (BOLT) has reorganized with a new board of directors and set of goals. It will have its first general meeting at 5 p.m. Thursday in the Communications Lounge for those who are interested in becoming involved in black theater on campus, by performing, promoting or both, and in becoming involved with an active theater group.

According to Brenda Majors, one of the board members and acting artistic director of the group, a specific goal is to positively promote black theater and culture, while avoiding a sort of reverse discrimination. Major said the group is not limited to blacks and that white producers may for the most part be oriented to their culture. "We're going to do good plays. It doesn't matter what color."

The first production the group will stage is "Day of Absence," a one-act play by Douglas Turner Ward, described by Major as a farce about a small Southern town that wakes up one morning to find all the blacks missing, after which the town falls apart.

The cast has roles for six men and six women. Auditions will be 5 to 7 p.m. Jan. 26 and 27 in the Communications Lounge. The performances are set tentatively for the last weekend of February as part of Black History Month.

Petitions ignored

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — A school board board has decided to take "no action" against a pregnant, unwed teacher, despite demands from some parents to fire her.

In November, the board received petitions to have 41-year-old Patricia Hope dismissed because she was "immoral" and was setting a poor example for her students.

Organ donors are the spare parts shops of America. Almost any part of one human body can be transplanted into another human body, with varying degrees of success.

Kidneys and corneas are the organs most in demand. However, hearts, livers, lungs, pancreas, bones, and skin are also being transplanted, said W. Tyree Finch, associate member of surgery at the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield.

"The single most active transplant being done is the kidney," he said.

"The cornea is the single most successful." Hearts and livers are now being transplanted more frequently, he said.

The School of Medicine's transplant facility is one of six in the Illinois Transplant Society. The other five centers are in the Chicago area.

The only organ transplant being done at the School of Medicine is the kidney. Of the approximately 200 people who receive kidney transplants each year in Illinois, Finch said that between 16 and 20 of the operations are performed at the Springfield facility.

The world is full of suitable organ donors. But a hospital can't wait around until a body comes rolling in. "In a matter of minutes, the usefulness of the organ is past," he said.

Because organs must be taken from a body before heart death occurs, there must be some determination of death, usually brain death.

While the rest of the body is maintained artificially, a neurosurgeon examines the brain to be sure that it is beyond repair. When this diagnosis has been made, Finch said that the organs can be taken.

Corneas and skin are the only two organs that may be taken for use hours after the body is declared both brain and heart dead.

Upon the death of an organ donor, the medical suitability of his organs is determined. Organs are unacceptable, for example, if an individual died of cancer or another body-wide infection, either internal or external. The ideal donor, Finch said, is young and in good health at the time of death.

An individual may become an organ donor simply by signing an organ donor card. Such a card now appears on the back of the Illinois drivers license. When the individual's signature is witnessed by another person, the donor card becomes a legal document, he said.

Although the organ donor card is a legal document, Finch said it is imperative to have the family agree to the donation, because at the time of death, the family may refuse to have the organs donated and that refusal would be honored.

Fears that being an organ donor would in some way incur extra expense or change the funeral processes are unfounded, Finch said. Social Security taxes, through Medicare, pay for the entire program. The family is still obligated to provide the funeral expenses.

The body is in no way mutilated and the funeral service itself remains the choice of the family. Most religions also support the organ donor program.

Citizens push for school merge

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Supporters of the plan to consolidate Carbondale High School classes are gearing up for next month's referendum, and are getting ready to hit the streets.

A citizen's committee, created to promote an $8.75 million bond issue, was scheduled to meet Wednesday night to distribute fact sheets to workers who will meet with the public between now and Feb. 22, when the bond issue will appear on the City Council primary election ballot.

Karen Johnson, in charge of the committee's publicity, said there are about 100 people who will work in the effort to sell the bond issue to the public. Within the citizen's committee are a speakers' committee, a chain card committee, a neighborhood visitation committee, a telephone committee and a finance committee.

The plan the citizen's committee will try to sell calls for the consolidation of the present three Carbondale High School campuses to the 41-acre East Campus, located on East Walnut Street, and the construction of new facilities there.

A similar proposal was defeated in the March 1982 primary election by a vote of 2,084 to 2,270.

Johnson said a brochure promoting the consolidation plan will be ready sometime next week and will be distributed door-to-door prior to the referendum. She also said members of the speaker's committee have already met with several local groups and plan to meet with many more before the referendum.

Noting the continuing decline in high school enrollment, proponents of the consolidation plan say the present split-campus arrangement leads to higher transportation, utility and personnel costs, and creates unnecessary problems in administration and scheduling.

Supporters also point out if the bond issue fails, an estimated $3.2 million will have to be spent to upgrade the facilities at Central Campus.

In the supporters' opinion, it's a pay now or pay later situation: pay now for a new consolidated building or continue to pay later for continuing repairs at the Central Campus.

Opponents of the plan question the necessity of the consolidation, which would raise property taxes. There is also the unresolved question of what to do with the facilities at the Central Campus and the Vocational school on East Main Street if those campuses were closed.

The consolidation supporters hope the vote this year will take place in a friendlier atmosphere. Last year's referendum was on the ballot with the Jackson County Jail bond issue, which was overwhelmingly rejected by voters.

Proponents also point out last year's election came when SIU-C was not in session — this year they hope to get support from the university community.

Mule trader's lane causes fuss

KNIGHTDALE, N.C. (AP) — Community leaders say Knightdale is tired of being the butt of jokes about its Jack Ass Road.

"Let's face it, Jack Ass Road sounded fine around the turn of the century," said Wake County Commissioner John T. Massey Jr. "But it's time to have this changed, because Knightdale is wanting to be progressive."

The road was named in honor of the late mule trader Haywood Poole, who once lived and worked on the road.

"It just doesn't sound right to say that businesses, like the Knightdale Pharmacy and Poole Funeral Service, are located near the corner of U.S. Highway 64 and Jack Ass Road," Massey said.

L. Harold Poole, owner of the funeral home, said he was surprised to learn the descriptive location of his business.

"I was listening to the police scanner one day and I heard a fireman say there was a fire on Jack Ass Road near my funeral home," Poole said.

Government considers freeze in black lung pension benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the United Mine Workers union will be paying close attention to President Reagan's State of the Union speech next week to hear what he has to say about black lung benefits.

Government officials have indicated there could be a delay or freeze on cost of living benefits for an estimated 450,000 recipients of black lung assistance. Federal figures show that about 52,000 of the recipients are coal miners or widows and dependents who live in Kentucky.

John Jarvis, a UMW lobbyist, said the union is looking into the proposed freeze. "We're concerned, and we'll have to see what they come out with."

It is unclear what Reagan actually will propose on the issue until he gives his speech, he said.

Jarvis said it would be easier for the UMW to fight a proposal to freeze black lung benefits than one that would delay the adjustment as part of a package plan.

The freeze in benefits could stem from a Reagan administration plan to seek a six-month delay in this year's Social Security cost of living adjustment. Government officials indicated Monday the delay may be extended to other programs, including civil service and military pensions, railroad retirement plans, veterans' benefits and the black lung program.

By law, payments to people who receive black lung benefits are directly tied to federal salary scales. But the administration hinted last week it will ask Congress not to give federal workers pay raises this year.

While benefits vary according to the number of dependents, the basic rate for a single miner is $304.90 a month. Currently, federal law sets the black lung benefit at 37.5 percent of what is made by a government worker in the GS-2 grade.

There has been a raise in black lung benefits every since 1975, the year the cost of living provision took effect, said a spokesman for the Social Security Administration, which administers the program with the U.S. Department of Labor. The most recent cost of living raise came in October.

Mayor urges citizens to buy guns

By Michael McKesson
Associated Press Writer

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Mayor Wilce Cooke started 1983 with an unusual New Year's message for his constituents, residents of the state's poorest community. He issued a call to arms, urging citizens to buy guns.

"If you are a homeowner, arm yourself against intruders," the 43-year-old mayor said at a city commission meeting earlier this month. "That is your constitutional right."

The commissioners then declared a "war on crime," pledging support for the local police department.

"It's a great city... we have great people," Cooke said recently as he drove along avenues lined with abandoned homes and boarded-up businesses.

"We have a ready work force, we have vacant buildings, we have land and we offer tax abatements," he said. Benton Harbor is a prime spot for new business to locate and the publicity about the city's gun controversy lets investors know what is available, Cooke believes.

"Now that it's (Benton Harbor) at its nadir, it's time to bounce back," he said.

Benton Harbor, about 50 miles across Lake Michigan from Chicago and 180 miles west of Detroit, is Michigan's poorest community, according to a new "need index" ranking by the state Commerce Department.

Urban renewal in the 1960s forced the city's black residents to relocate in white areas. The white population reacted by fleeing to adjacent St. Joseph. And the recession of the 1970s wiped out jobs, many of them related to the auto industry. The city of 16,000 people now is about 86 percent black.

The unemployment rate in November was 29.5 percent. City officials estimate that 55 percent of the residents receive some sort of government aid. The city is virtually broke. Cooke said its finances had been in "a state of chaos" in the 10 years prior to his election in 1981. During the last three years, the town has had four city managers and is preparing to hire a fifth. A shopper would have difficulty finding an open business in many blocks on Main Street.

And some of the people are afraid.

With 10 homicides in 1982, Benton Harbor is believed to have one of the highest murder rates in the country for a city its size. There were about 700 burglaries last year.

It's into this climate that Cooke, convicted in 1966 of illegally carrying a concealed weapon, injected his call to arms.

Tax refunds become IOUs

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Millions of California residents expecting a state tax refund this year could receive IOUs instead, and will need a newspaper to know when payment is ready.

The state controller's office said Tuesday registered warrants — in effect, promises to pay — will be issued unless a way is found to eliminate the state's deficit.

Personal diet computer has lowdown on calories

By Keith Gaver
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AF) — Harry Friedman is one of an estimated 40 million dieting Americans often frustrated by vague or contradictory calorie charts. Not anymore.

Friedman, a former writer and producer of television's "Hollywood Squares," has created a machine designed to take the guesswork out of dieting. COMPUCAL — introduced here this week at a giant housewares exposition — gives an exact calorie count at the push of a button. But it goes several steps further. It also measures exact amounts of protein, sodium, carbohydrates, fat and cholesterol.

The small, personal-diet computer, the first of its kind, should be available at local stores by April, said the 5-foot-9 Friedman, who once weighed 235 pounds. The battery-operated computer stores information on nearly 700 foods, including generic and brand names. An index lists three-digit codes for each food, ranging "from the ridiculous to the sublime, from caviar to Spam," Friedman says.

The computer also measures the same ingredients of various liquids — and subtracts the weight of the container. And it will keep a running daily, weekly or monthly count of calories for up to nine individuals.

Friedman, president of Personal Computer Industries in Sherman Oaks, Calif., said the concept of such a machine came to mind about three years ago as he filled a notebook with his daily intake of calories, carbohydrates and sodium from figures supplied in books and charts.

"It doesn't take long to realize that every chart is different and that portion descriptions are impossibly vague," he said, noting the difficulty of measuring what damage an "average" apple or "large" bagel can do to the waistline. Some physicians and dieticians have already endorsed his creation, Friedman said.

He noted that in his research he found that about 120 million Americans exceed their ideal weight and about a third are trying to do something about it.

ponents. Before that though, WSU has to get by Bradley Thursday.

Tulsa will play at Bradley Saturday at 4 p.m. in a game that will be televised by CBS-TV. Drake has made the best use of the three point play, hitting 24 of 50 attempts. Bradley has made only 10 of 49. As a whole Valley teams are hitting better than 33 percent.

SIU-C is averaging only 2,769 fans per home game. Only West Texas State is doing worse, and the Buffaloes play in a smaller arena.

Intramural play picking up

The intramural office, back at work after a short holiday, is starting the new year by introducing a new sport for the students to play this semester, team-handball. This is not the handball of the past, though. The ball is about the size of a basketball and it can be passed, run with, dribbled, and even punted. The game is a combination of soccer and basketball, according to the Joyce Craven, director of intramurals.

Clinics to teach rules to players and officials are 8 to 10 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the gym at the Student Recreation Center. The rosters are due after the second clinic.

Basketball tournaments begin Monday and with the deadline Wednesday, 195 teams were signed up.

Table tennis singles is yet another sport being offered this semester by the intramural department. The players' meeting is at 4 p.m. Wednesday and the rosters are due Jan. 31.

Conrado Porta has been a mainstay of the swim team for four years.

PORTA from Page 28

Porta is primarily a backstroker, but is also used on the freestyle relay teams, and is capable of doing well in the other strokes. Steele said.

"He can do just about anything," the coach said, "but he's a natural backstroke leader. It's his best stroke skill-wise and he has had a great deal of success with it. He's had so many outstanding performances."

Porta has been a South American champion and an NCAA All-American. He considers his performance in the 1978 World Championships in Berlin, when he took sixth in the 100 back and seventh in the 200 back, as the best of his big international meets.

This year, his last as a Saluki, should be one of the swimmer's best, according to Steele.

"He's swimming so consistently now," the coach said. "He's more team-oriented this year, and much more coachable."

With 17 years of experience, Porta knows pretty well what he needs to do, but a coach is still an important part of training.

"I'm more independent now than when I was younger," he said, "but I need to have a coach next to me. Not to tell me everything I have to do, but to guide."

When not traveling around the world, Porta still can get a taste of the international just by being on the Saluki team, where almost half the team represents countries other than the United States, including Sweden, South Africa and Australia.

"It's one of the things I like most, with just a small group of people you can have so many from different countries," Porta said. "And it's not just the swim team, it's the people I've met here, they're all different. You can learn from everyone, and I think that's great."

"Pressure is good for the girls, as long as they don't let it get to them," he said. "This week Randy (Bettis, assistant coach) and I have been putting pressure on them in practice, while training, to see how they hold up. We want them to get through their routines, so we can start adding difficulty.

"The key to a successful weekend for us is to score 170 points or more," Vogel said. "We need a successful weekend, regardless of whether we win or lose. To score that high, we need to reduce our errors, get rough our routines, and have confidence in ourselves."

quickly, earning a position in each Cindy Scott's starting rotation as a rookie.

A shoulder injury, however, limited her court time during the 1980-81 campaign. As a sophomore, Price "carried the team offensively for much of the season," Scott was quoted as saying in the Salukis' press index. In that season she raised her field goal percentage to .521, up from .494 as a freshman. She also pulled down an average of over three more rebounds per game, and tripled her scoring average.

Although the shoulder injury occurred this year, and has been further complicated by a collar bone separation, Price hasn't been affected. No team has been able to hold the SIU-C pivoter to under 15 points this season.

"This year she's really come through for us," said Assistant Coach Julie Beck. "Coach Scott and I always knew she was going to. This year she's made a believer out of everyone."

Price, although suddenly cast into the national limelight, has not been unaware of her development as a team player.

"I've matured in a lot of ways," she said. "I'm more aggressive. I work harder."

Raised on the outskirts of St. Louis with three step-sisters and a step-brother, Price was nine years younger than the second youngest child. Consequently, "they never took me anywhere," she said of her siblings, all of whom are now married with children of their own. If, like most little sisters, she was ignored by the bigger kids at home, she's certainly got the attention of the big kids on the hardwood now.

Never let it be said, however, that Price isn't one to give credit where credit is due.

"I think my teammates helped out a lot," she said. "They helped me get confidence in myself. Playing with D.D. (Plab) and Char (Warring) all three years helped a lot. Susan Faber helped me gain confidence this year. Coach Beck pushed me a lot. She was constantly ragging me. I'd get mad but now I'm glad she did."

Price reserves a great deal of the credit, though, to her head coach, noting a special combination of rapport, respect and liking for Scott that has seen her through the tough times. Tough times, hopefully, are water under the bridge for the Salukis, whom Price believes are a solid bet to win the inaugural Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference title.

"I think we'll win the conference, if we play with our heads up," said the commercial recreation major. "Everybody's playing really good right now. We can't take people lightly. The rest of our schedule is pretty important. When we play tough as a team, I don't think there are many teams that can contain us."

As the GCAC season unfolds, SIU-C, now 1-0 in conference play, will be relying on the talents of Price to capture an automatic bid to the NCAA tourney in March. But opponents are also well aware that the Scott's offense is "geared to go inside on the first and second option," according to Beck. Fortunately for the Salukis, the talent is diversified enough to offset any keying done on the Price, as evidenced Tuesday when DePaul ganged up on the center and left Warring open to score a career-high 28 points. And though the keying will make it increasingly harder to shoot at a nationally pace-setting clip, it will undoubtedly be the opposing centers that will pay the ultimate Price.

Attention: Student Workers

WHY A CREDIT UNION?

Your paycheck is not your only benefit as a student employee of SIU. You are eligible for membership in SIU Employees Credit Union.

A credit union is a cooperative financial organization. Members pool their savings and borrow from their assets. The credit union is a truly owned by its members. It makes no difference who they are, but we have $25 or $25,000, you are part owner — a shareholder.

Because a credit union is member-owned it credits daily gives a higher interest rate on savings. In addition, SIU Employees Credit Union offers an attractive package of financial services custom tailored to meet members' needs.

COSTS NOTHING TO JOIN

Membership in the credit union costs you nothing to join or later. Simply maintain $25 in a Share Savings Account. Since you are a part-owner, you represent one share in the credit union. If you should ever decide to terminate your membership, your $25 will be refunded in full. In the meantime it will earn higher than bank interest.

ONCE A MEMBER ALWAYS A MEMBER

SIU Employees Credit Union subscribes to the philosophy "Once a member, always a member." You will retain your credit union membership for life, even if you are no longer employed by SIU. Membership is a lifelong benefit available to you now.

CUSTOM CHEQUING

Custom checking is a thing of the past at banks and savings & loans in the area. Not at the credit union.

The credit union offers a truly cost free checking account. It requires no minimum balance, no monthly service charge, and no charge for clearing checks.

Secondly, student members with an average daily balance of only $750 will earn 5 1/2% annual interest from date of deposit to date of withdrawal. Interest is paid monthly. Many student members report moving money from other savings accounts to their interest-bearing checking account to earn interest on all of their money — including that which will be spent on living expenses.

The credit union's checking account earns daily interest on all of the money filtered through the account. Even if the funds are in the account for two days, two months, or two years.

The credit union has one of the lowest minimum balance requirements on interest-bearing accounts in the area and pays without question the highest rate of interest.

Members also receive monthly statements on both plans showing all account activity.

Connie Price has been money in the bank for the Saluki women.

Things falling in place for top-shooting cager

By Brian Higgins
Staff Writer

Swish!

That's a sound that SIU-C's women cagers' opponents have become all too familiar with this season. Particularly afflicted are the centers assigned to stalk the Salukis' Connie Price, having to listen to the sound of ball meeting net, resounding above their heads as steadily as the rhythm of the falling rain. For when Price sends the basketball into flight, odds say that it will hit its target nearly three out of every four times. No other player in the country can claim that degree of accuracy.

Price has led the Salukis to a 10-3 record, via a nine-game winning streak, at the midway point of the regular season. The 6-foot-3-inch junior leads the team in scoring (19.7 per game) and rebounding (8.8), but leads the entire nation in shooting. After an off game against DePaul Tuesday night (4 for 9), Price's shooting percentage dropped from 73.8 to 71.9 percent. That's still well ahead of San Francisco's Linda Walsh. Price's closest competition, who was firing at a 66.2 percent clip as of the latest NCAA statistical releases.

"When everyone talks about it, I feel I have to go out and make every shot," Price said of her coveted position. "When I miss a cheap shot I get frustrated. I'm putting pressure on myself that doesn't need to be there. But I'm really excited about leading the nation."

Price entered the SIU-C camp as a freshman, after turning down offers from campuses such as Missouri and Oklahoma, not to mention a host of smaller schools. Fresh from a prominent prep career at St. Charles High School in St. Charles, Mo., Price made the collegiate circuit adjustment

Transfer guard gives SIU-C needed firepower in line-up

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

The Saluki offense reached the nadir of a difficult season Monday night against Creighton. During a 76-53 loss to the unimposing Blue Jays, the Salukis shot just 28.8 percent from the floor. That is to say, they missed 42 of 59 shots.

Shooting has been an SIU-C liability for a while now. The team was the worst shooting assemblage in the Missouri Valley Conference last year, hitting just 42 percent of its tries. The situation has improved slightly this season, to 45 percent from the floor, but there are still nights when the Salukis can't shoot their way out of a paper bag.

Enter Benny Smith. The 6-3 junior college transfer joined the Salukis at the Illini tournament after the first semester ended, and in his brief time with the team, he has shown the promise of becoming another Saluki scoring threat. (Despite a recent slump, Ken Byrd can't be counted out. He is averaging 17.3 per game.)

After a six-minute stint late in his first game, Saluki coach Allen Van Winkle threw his prized acquisition into the dangerous waters of the MVC, and, so far, Smith has kept his head above water.

He is averaging 10.3 points per game after six contests, despite spending a lot of time operating at point guard.

Smith has started five of those games, a remarkable number for a player who had not practiced with the team before his first game. It also represents Van Winkle's investment in him. The Saluki coach has not been one to stay with the same lineup this year, and 12 of 13 players have started games.

"We're glad to have him," said Van Winkle. "He's a good shooter and has good quickness."

Smith's best game was in SIU-C's 87-75 upset of Bradley. He scored 21 points in 31 minutes as SIU-C had its best night of the young conference season. Van Winkle liked the play of Smith in that game. He called his other efforts so-so and that Smith was still not integrated into the Saluki system.

"It's unusual to join a team in mid-year," said Van Winkle. "That's a hard thing to do, to learn everything quick and blend in."

Nevertheless Van Winkle asked Smith to do just that, and do it fast.

"He told me I had to grow up real fast," said Smith. "The big adjustment was to the system — to do what the coaches wanted me to do and see what I could do to help the team."

Smith hasn't been shy about putting the ball up. He took 19 shots in the 87-84 overtime loss to New Mexico State, but not because of any pressure to pump life into the offense. Van Winkle, who had Byrd on his bench while he continued to lead the team in scoring, doesn't look at Smith as an offensive savior. "He doesn't put that emphasis on one person scoring," said Smith. "Those three or four people have to score consistently."

Smith knows he can be one of those people.

"I consider myself an offensive ballplayer," he said. "I can score with anybody. It's just natural. The big thing is controlling the game, to do what I have to do to help the team. The points will come."

It sounds cocky, but Smith is just being natural. Since he's never had any problems scoring before, why should the MVC be any different?

Smith has been a natural ever since he abandoned football and started playing basketball during his junior year of high school.

He's played with winners ever since he began playing, too. His high school teams went 22-8 and 28-5. At Volunteer State, Smith's team went 29-4 in his sophomore season, and then he led them to a fifth-place finish in the junior college national tournament.

All that makes SIU-C's 5th start difficult to swallow. "It's killing me," he said.

Gymnasts to challenge tough foes

Performance under pressure.

According to women's gymnastics coach Herb Vogel, it's the difference between a good team and a great team. Vogel hopes his club will deposit itself into the latter category this weekend when it travels to Missouri to tangle with Mizzou, Mankato State and Iowa State, then returns home Sunday to host Southeast Missouri and Ohio State.

Vogel's team will take a 2-1 dual meet record to Mizzou. The Tigers appear to be SIU-C's toughest opponent, having surpassed the 170-point barrier twice already this season. Although the Tigers have lost sophomore standouts Janelle Erickson and Zina Arrington to knee injuries, junior Gayle Anderson, the 1982 Big Eight champion on balance beam, has come back to fill most of the gap they left.

Iowa State will prove no easy match for the Salukis, either. The Cyclones boast a 3-1 record, with a win over the University of Denver, the 1982 AIAW Division II national champions.

The Salukis will get no breathing room Sunday when they return to play host to SEMO and Ohio State at the Arena. SEMO owns a 16-4 season record and would like to establish itself as the top area team with a win over SIU-C. The Otahkians are the highest scoring NCAA Division II team nationally this year and have compiled an 11-3 mark against Division I opponents. SEMO returns most of the lineup that downed the Salukis once last year and boasts three 34-point plus gymnasts in sophomores Laurie Schoenbaum and Vici Strini and freshman Sandra Foster.

An ever more foreboding opponent than SEMO, Ohio State comes to Carbondale with a 3-0 mark. The Buckeyes victories have come over national powerhouses Minnesota, Nebraska and Penn State. OSU snagged its second consecutive Midwest Regional title last year and went on to finish 5th in a field of 12 teams at the AIAW nationals.

Saluki mentor Vogel stresses that his team is not competing with any of the other teams this weekend.

"As far as I'm concerned, the other teams are only performing in the same gym with us, not against us," Vogel said.

"They're only there as a matter of convenience, because you have to have another team to have a meet. We're competing against ourselves, for scores. Performance is what qualifies a team for regionals, not the win-loss record."

"I'll consider this weekend successful if we score 170 points or more," he went on. "This team is capable of 170-point plus scoring, but they just haven't achieved it yet. It's a gradual achievement, something you have to build up to."

A big boost to Saluki scoring will be the return of veteran all-arounder Pam Turner. Turner has not been competing in all-around competition because of an injury, but Vogel said she will probably not perform up to par because she hasn't worked out for six weeks.

"Our biggest problem this weekend will be pressure," Vogel said. "The pressure the girls felt the first two weeks may have just been from the first competition of the season. Now, though, they're aware of what they have to do and what scores they need. They just aren't sure yet that they can get those scores."

Swimmers get mileage from veteran

The miles he's logged in the pool may not equal the miles he's traveled around the world, but after 17 years of swimming, Conrado Porta has put in more than he can count in both categories.

"I've been to Europe two times, and pretty much every country in North, South and Central America," said the 24-year-old co-captain of the men's swimming and diving team. "For the last six years, I don't think I've gone without going away for more than three months, either out of the country or to different states for meets."

Porta has represented his native country, Argentina, in two Pan Am games, three World championships, and the 1976 Olympic games. He qualified for the 1980 Argentine Olympic team, and left school to train for the Games, but missed the opportunity to participate when Argentina joined several other countries in boycotting the competition in Moscow.

"I was disappointed, but not too much because I was not swimming that well at that time," he said. "I didn't agree with what they did, but I was not in the best shape mentally for swimming, so it didn't affect me that much."

Porta, who will graduate in December with a degree in agricultural economics, plans to end competitive swimming after he swims in the Latin Cup, which will be held in April in Portugal. The traveling and interaction with teammates are things he will miss, he said, but one thing he will not miss are the daily workouts.

"I don't enjoy workouts, I never have, but I know I have to do it in order to achieve something," he said. "It's not easy to go in day in, day out, three or four hours a day, or more sometimes."

Though not always enthusiastic about practice, Porta is a hard worker and one of the most aggressive competitors on the team, according to Coach Bob Steele.

"Being innately aggressive is what has made him so successful," Steele said. "Whatever limitations he has in skill or physical capacity, he makes up for in aggressive training and racing."
